I decided to create the following feeds:

- Recommender systems
  - Keywords: recommender systems, recommender system, collaborative filtering, content-based filtering.
  - Description and Goals: all news on advances in recommender systems.
  - Possible improvement: (1) When I was creating the feed, I have observed dynamically updated contents. Apparently, the Google News doesn't account for different term forms (system/systems) and the related terms (such as 'collaborative filtering'), as news sets for all the terms above almost don't intersect. (2) Google News display the news only. However, in a field of Recommender Systems news are announced events (e.g. conferences) and new papers published on the topic. Currently I receive such stuff from the Google Alerts, but it seems this should be included in the news as well, (3) For this and the following feeds, the recommender system really lacks of finding similar terms, thus limiting people, who just read about some topic and haven't understood all terminology in the domain. This may be solved with Latent Semantic Analysis (PCA, SVD, etc). (4) For this and the following feeds, the news lack of explaining. Sometimes it is useful to at least group the recommendations / news by the matched keywords, e.g. news on 'collaborative filtering', news on 'content-based filtering' and news on 'recommender systems startup'. Combined with the more refined keywords (such as the latter), that would provide a nice instrument to adjust the structure of your personalized news feed.
- Peer-to-peer economy
  - Keywords: crowdsourcing, crowdfunding.
  - Description: That's about new trends in the economy.
  - Goals: Get news about development of the existing trends (see keywords) and new ones,
  - Possible improvement: (1) Peer-to-peer economy is the new trend, and this domain is just forming as well as the terms. It would be nice to incorporate some type of the concept drift and catch, for instance, new terms that start to co-occur with the existing ones (2) I was trying to add 'peer-to-peer-economy' itself, but that didn't brought any additional news. It's hard to distinguish non-useful term from term that just lacks of recent news on the topic.
- Packrafting
  - Keywords: packraft, packrafts, packrafting, packrafter.
  - Description: That's about leisure activity / extreme sport based on rafting in small inflatable boats. However, just a few people call them packrafts, hence there're not many news on that.
  - Goals: get information about new routes and reports, as well as about new boats and equipment. However, it is such a rare term that I decided not to put additional constraints (such as 'packrafting bew boat' or 'packrafting report') and leave just basic terms here.

- o Possible improvement: I would like to be able specify only one form (e.g. 'packraft') and have everything related added to this feed. It is easy to do using, for instance, DBpedia ontology that sheds some light about the related stuff. Important related stuff may be inferred using the TFIDF approach (i.e. find other terms important for this term, but not for others)
